News & Journalism in Scaffolding

Why read, watch and subscribe to the “big 4” in scaffolding news?

Scaffolding is a multi-billion £ pound industry in the UK - even more so when you account for its overall impact on the many national building, infrastructure and maintenance sectors in Britain, and this makes it indirectly an integral part of the multi-trillion £ pound British economy.

So to those who value this industry as much as we do, ULTRA ACCESS would like to officially recommend (what we consider the “big 4”) in scaffolding news, gossip, safety alerts, general information and industry regulatory updates... please find them below (in no particular order).

ScaffMag:

Founded in 2009 by scaffolder Daniel Norton, it has steadily grown into one of the the leading sources of news and information for the British (and in-part) global Scaffolding Industry. Having evolved since then into a multipurpose information, advertising and job seeking / recruitment tool, its free to subscribe to online and is action packed with current industry news.

Scaffolding Insider:

Created and Published by NASC - the National Access & Scaffolding Confederation.

A monthly magazine publication, that shares valuable insights into the industry from a regulatory perspective and helps promote NASC member design and build quality, as well as information on meetings and events that come straight from parliamentary committees created to discuss the future of the British Scaffolding Industry, and more.

Access Point:

A monthly magazine published with lots of breaking news and information regards to The Scaffolding Association and their members, as well as bulletins and articles on the wider-industry, as well as improvements, safety alerts and insights.

The “View with Vertex”:

The worlds leading British Scaffolding Industry Podcast, and a slight change to the magazine format of the other 3 leading scaffolding and access industry publications.

Created by scaffolding and safety specialist Isaac Morrison and gives real-time Podcast interviews and discussions, with industry leaders and scaffolders alike about all things scaffolding in a highly relaxed atmosphere.

There are others of course, but we feel that these 4 are the most prominent and current of all the British Scaffolding Industry news and information organisations. And we highly recommened subscribing to each of these to have all of your bases covered.
